

Your care comes first

Support for transplants and special medical needs

Treatment and resources when you need them

You may never need an organ transplant or treatment for a rare disease. But you can rest a little easier if you do. That's because you can use our special programs. They help you get the care and resources you need — when you need them most.

Dedicated support right by your side

Facing a transplant can be overwhelming. There are medical tests to take, doctors' instructions to follow and treatment choices to make.

Our program pairs you with a clinical coordinator who works closely with you and your doctor. Every step of the way, you have someone on your side to help you get covered medical care.

Hospitals in our Institutes of Excellence™ network* provide transplant care. This network includes transplant facilities with high medical standards and successful records of treatment.

Special Case Precertification Unit*

From rare conditions to emergencies outside the country ... we're here to help.

The Special Case Precertification Unit helps with:

- Precertification of rare conditions
- Hemophilia treatment
- Emergency admissions out of the country
- Gender reassignment surgery

Our dedicated staff helps you get care at network facilities — and helps you find your way through the health care system.

Rare conditions

Do you have a rare disease that needs extra-special treatment? If so, we'll work with your provider and help you find the best place for care.

Hemophilia treatment

If you have problems with blood clotting, you can visit a hemophilia treatment center. Our nurses can help you keep your costs down. And they can help you find the facility that best meets your needs.

Emergencies out of the country

Of course, emergencies don't wait until it's convenient. Your health benefits and insurance plan doesn't either. If you're admitted to the hospital for a medical emergency while traveling outside the United States, there's no need to worry. We'll be there to help.

Whether you need a transplant or special medical care, we'll be along to help you.
